Paul Davis sponsors the Frederick County Chamber of Commerce
2016 Public Safety Awards program

Gaithersburg, Md. – March 15, 2016 – Tom Plant, owner and president of Paul Davis Restoration and Remodeling of Suburban Maryland and Washington DC recently co-sponsored the Frederick County Chamber of Commerce Public Safety Awards program at the Brunswick Volunteer Fire Company’s banquet hall. On March 8, Plant donated $1,500 to support more than (how many?) emergency responders who attended the ceremony including police, fire and emergency medical personnel and support teams.

Since 2012, the local event commemorates emergency response team members and their dedication to public service. Initially, Plant organized the Frederick County public safety awards program from a similar event which he helped to establish with the Germantown-Gaithersburg Chamber of Commerce beginning in 2008.

This year, local and key members of the Frederick Police Department and the Criminal Investigation Division, along with individual officers and first responders were commended for investigating a myriad of criminal and lifesaving incidents including the shooting at Frederick High School. Additionally, a total of 51 firefighters, deputies, state troopers and emergency rescue personnel were given awards for the multi-agency response to the water rescue at Linganore Dam and other numerous confrontations throughout the County.

According to Plant, the awards presentations recognize the heroic deeds of many local heroes. “These men and women go beyond the call of duty to perform brave deeds for us in our community. We want to thank them and show our appreciation for their hard work,” he said. “What’s really exciting about these programs is to see the truly deserving first responders receive these awards and recognition. In a career such as this one where there is always pressure to perform under some very sensitive and hazardous situations, it is incredibly gratifying to see these men and women walk up on stage and receive awards they didn’t expect, but so richly deserve.”

The Paul Davis donation is part of the local company’s annual initiative to recognize public service leaders and help those in need throughout suburban Maryland and Washington DC.
